

When Sybille Fleckenstein, Jens Pohlmann and Thilo Schwer opened their design studio in 2002, they named it speziell® (special) to express that they are looking for a unique, surprising and special solution for each individual project. The three product designers believe in the strength of a design process where each of the team members brings different experiences and view points to the table. This results in concise designs that do not promote the ego of an individual person but place emphasis on the joint approach.
